Cross border collaboration with Hackney council - they need to abide to similar licensing policies and be held responsible for the night-time related ASBs brought to our borough. They should not be any license granted to premises within the courtyards shared with residents. The council should also look into the event licenses which premises used to encroach on residential areas. The Boundary TRA had to fight off the organisation On-Redchurch (funded by major developers but impersonating as a community group) who tried to stage street parties on the Boundary Estate. The previous council funded this organisation and the event and public realm department initially approved their event. After discussing with the council event team, the event was finally halted. Please be careful who you fund or support. On Redchurch is not a community group. No street parties in dense residential estate please.

We need more cultural events in towers hamlets - this includes clubs. Save London's nightlife!

Should any changes be made to established businesses that could potentially put those businesses at risk, those businesses should receive support from the council to ensure their survival in keeping with the original business ethos.

When a new license is granted I think that a minimum time limit should be placed on the premises which would prohibit them from going back to the licensing authority seeking changes and variations to the license they have been granted, I think that a one year minimum time limit would be reasonable, this would hopefully stop the practice of newly licensed premises who were not originally granted all they had asked for from just reapplying again a few months down the line, if they operate in a responsible way during the first year of operation then by all means apply again with a years worth of evidence on how the premises operated.

TENS applications must include a fire safety policy for the location, and 40 metre zone mitigation strategy to manage crowd control, noise and nuisance, storage for empties and cigarette butts, prevention of lewd behaviour and public urination, all in the immediate vicinity of the event location.

I'd like a Sainsbury's in Wapping, also a Primark and any shops as we have three closed premises in Wapping Lane - including the bakers, recently. This is a highly residential area (not solely wealthy people) and we have minimal facilities and an elderly population relying on the two local buses. Instead of another sports bar/rubbish Italian restaurant why not an arts cinema? Who pays, wins.

1/27/2023 11:07 PM

Local residents must be consulted on applications for new fast food businesses.

1/28/2023 02:18 AM

Pubs and other licenced to venue should not be permitted to allow customer to take drinks and smoke outside their venue because they block the pavement, causing residents and other footpath user to walk on road or take other routes. It also noise nuisance for residents living near these establishments during the summer.

The decline of lgbtq+ clubs and party spaces is a travesty in Tower Hamlets. Last year's targetting of Klub Verboten and Crossbreed was a shame on the council and the license conditions of prohibiting semi-nudity in private venues targets these institutions directly. I am sure you have never been to one of these spaces, but they are havens of freedom of expression, safety, and community. Historically, lgbtq+ spaces have always been targetted for being 'immoral' and 'different'. These spaces do not hurt anyone, they make it clear the dress standards are flexible for those attending, and they contribute to lgbtq+ life in the city. They are away from family and residents, usually in very shut off warehouses. As a young Bangladeshi lgbtq+ person, Tower Hamlets thriving queer scene is one of my favourite things about the Borough. My friends all over London are often jealous about the quality of nightlife here! Here is an article on Tower Hamlets moral panic and targetting: <https://mixmag.net/read/fetish-parties-attacked-by-tower-hamlets-council-news/>. Please be on the right side of history.

Greater protection for historically & pre-existing licensed premises against any new complaints & challenges especially relating to noise. Support to retain licensed venues as socially & culturally significant places and stricter governance regarding change or restrictions to their use.

1/29/2023 03:06 PM

We need bins in Tower Hamlets - where are they ? This would also help the anti social behaviour if people see the are is taken care of -

1/30/2023 08:38 PM

Nox is by far a bigger issue than is currently acknowledged. There needs to be prosecution of vendors of nox and monitoring / actions around its use, particularly on streets and in cars.

The process of applying and paying for TENs seems clunky and long winded which allowed for increased margin for error. It would be great if this application process was streamlined via the online portal to allow for swift and concise applications, resulting in a reduction in admin on from both the applicant and council processor.

2/02/2023 04:16 PM

Majority of these rules and regulations seem to be adding more and more compliance to bars & restaurants who are already pretty good in providing a safe environment to guests. It feels like these resources would be better utilised in more public areas.

Please confirm whether the council are conducting proper cumulative

Pubs in residential areas cause the least problems of all licensed premises and suffer the strictest licensing regulations, furthermore, they existed long before current local residents moved to the area, as such leave them have their beer gardens until 11pm. Maybe 10pm on a Sunday.

I do agree with all the above points.

Safety first. Keep noise levels down whilst docked and close by to residential premises. Only allow the party to start when the boat has set off.

Drinking in the street / public highway / parks should be much more closely regulated and the police / council should have powers to regulate this and publicans should be held responsible for patrons causing nuisance outside their premises.

When licensed premises apply to have outside seating and service it is vital that neighbours are contacted before anything is granted. What has happened in our area in the past - E2 /Weavers Ward - is that people sitting outside drinking at night in Columbia Road and Ezra Street attract others who bring their own bottles and cans and sit in the street nearby. They then make a lot of noise and sometime urinate in the street. It can be a real problem in the summer nights and it would be great if it could be monitored.

Please keep supporting and developing the night life economy.
Please create a kink and queer friendly environment

Only comments I have is regarding party boats. As a lifelong resident and someone whose family home is on the Riverside, the party boats never have caused us issue. I find it annoying that "newcomers" in the expensive Riverside apartments complaining about the river, it has been busy for the past 1000 years. These same people never stay or lay down roots in the area, these people come and stay for five minutes and think they have the right to complain and trying to get things changed. Listen to the actual long term residents as opposed to the transient community in million pound apartments.

For drinking outlets within a 100 metres from dense residential estates, there must be tighter controls on spillover effects such as car bars where patrons continue to party and drink after the outlets closed., these on-premise outlets must not have takeaway drinking off premise license to prevent this.

Keep up with reviewing the licensing policy to keep everyone safe

4/05/2023 03:09 PM

Please review licenses in the case where flats/houses have been built next to venues - or at least enforce existing license requirements more strongly. New residents have to adapt to the area but only based on reasonable expectation: for instance it is reasonable to expect a pub in a residential area does not have a late night music license. Also, please consider the impact of loitering near the premises when determining licensing. Late night noise and chatter in public areas have impacted us severely, and venues claim it is not their responsibility to manage public areas.

Numerous spelling and other errors in the questionnaire (eg para b and P in boating section are the same)

Large venues like the one in wapping called skylight cause issues all over like a half mile in all directions

Apart from the minor litter problem, it is not true to state (as you have here) that nitrous oxide is associated with increased antisocial behaviour. This a pejorative claim made without evidence. Such a statement should have no place in a 'neutral' survey.
